The new Graduate Student Listening Sessions by OGPS is the modern-day version of the 'Suggestion Box'. The peer-to-peer Listening Sessions, hosted by Graduate Fellows, are a perfect place for you to bring your suggestions, concerns, and things you would like to change at Tulane University for graduate students. These evening Zoom sessions provide convenience and face-to-face interaction where you can be heard in a safe environment.

These listening sessions are open to Tulane graduate students that OGPS supports: all PhD students and those in research-based Master's programs.

Graduate Student Listening Session: Campus Life
Led by Jonathan Ogawa, 4+1 student in Economics
Monday, Feb. 7, 4:30 – 6 PM
Zoom link here

Graduate Student Listening Session: Career Support
Led by Shreya Bavishi, PhD student in Cell and Molecular Biology
Tuesday, Feb. 15, 4:30 – 6 PM
Zoom link here

Graduate Student Listening Session: Research and Grants
Led by Bolivar Aponte Rolon, PhD student in Ecology & Evolutionary Biology
Wednesday, Feb. 23, 4:30 – 6 PM
Zoom link here