We are grateful to be in community with all of our international learning and working remotely or in person. Some of the specific approaches.

community feel unwelcome as the new academic year better support graduate education and postdoc training at Tulane. Lauren, on behalf of OGPS, will begin her time with OGPS by taught customized academic writing courses for international across all disciplines at Georgia Tech. She has also designed and curricula and materials for specific academic and professional audiences. In recent years, she has developed courses and Assistant Director of the Georgia Tech Language Institute and a Lauren comes to us from Georgia Tech, where she was the Please join us in welcoming Lauren Lukkarila to the OGPS team!

Please check our assistant positions within Student Affairs and a role with TU have received information about a number of graduate employment opportunities after graduation. This month we from part time work-study jobs to assistantships, to full time business travel.

not be used if the university has restricted non-essential

Please check out our Grad Student and for all job seekers, Candor is maintaining a for academic and other types of positions.

The University of Chicago has an extremely helpful career guide, applicable to those in other disciplines. These slides accompanied workshop conducted by about when discussing their career considerations. is a topic that many grad students and postdocs ask is a topic that many grad students and postdocs ask GSSA has voted to donate some of its unused funds from the Secretaries of the Year accordingly.

... members of our international community are difficult issues members of our international community are

..., including those who are currently residing in the state Group at Tulane. All undergraduate and graduate experience in helping hone international graduate students' help accessing support remotely. As you've seen in her be supporting graduate students and postdocs who need August 3;